Aveshka announces Dr. Til Jolly as Chief Medical Officer

WASHINGTON, DC (August 10, 2020) – Aveshka announced Dr. Til Jolly will join the company's executive team in the newly created role of Chief Medical Officer (CMO).

Dr. Jolly is a board-certified emergency physician with a wide range of clinical, special event, and technology experience for areas in both the government and private sector. Prior to his CMO assignment, Dr. Jolly served as a part-time consultant to Aveshka since 2019 as the Senior Emergency Care Consultant to the Assistant Secretary for Preparedness and Response at the Department of Health and Human Services. He will continue to support these important areas.

Previously, Dr. Jolly served in myriad capacities to include CMO of SOC Telemed, the nation's largest specialty telemedicine provider where he led medical staff management, clinical quality, and clinical operations development. He held senior positions with the Department of Homeland Security (DHS) to include Deputy CMO and Associate CMO within the Office of Health Affairs (OHA) and Senior Science Advisor for the National Exercise Division of the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA). At FEMA, he coordinated modeling and simulation activities for exercise development, and guided the development of the medical readiness portfolio for DHS to include biodefense coordination and nuclear defense modeling and communications. At DHS, he led planning and preparedness operations for pandemic influenza and 2009 H1N1. Dr. Jolly also worked with the National Football League for 11 Super Bowls, overseeing the coordination of emergency management, public health and medical preparedness, and stadium security. In each of these roles he coordinated across multiple areas of expertise including preparedness, digital health and technology, clinical medicine, public health, and risk communications.

As CMO, Dr. Jolly will directly support clients by providing overarching clinical leadership and direction for all public health and healthcare matters. He will be responsible for all clinical content of educational programs offered by Aveshka and will contribute to overall product and services priorities, polices, and initiatives that improve preparedness and response within Aveshka's clients' environments.

"Dr. Jolly will no doubt be a crucial component of Aveshka's important work in public health and emergency management," said Girish Jindia, Aveshka President and CEO. "His vision for Aveshka's services and 'all-hazards' approach is greatly aligned with our goal of continuous improvement and expansion of our capabilities for both current and future customers, while rendering Aveshka as a go-to thought leader in these realms."

"I look forward to working with Aveshka's team and helping its growing customer base accomplish their critical missions," said Dr. Jolly. "The intersection of health with all threats across critical infrastructure has always been apparent, but in today's environment is at the top of every leader's priority list. Digital health and other innovations provide opportunities to approach health threats in new and exciting ways."
